Discrimination upheld: Court

The Indiana Court of Appeals man, that she was white and landlord who disapproved of "mixed marriages" discriminated against a Vigo County couple on the basis of race.

The action came as a result of lease on a lakeside house and refusing to return the $150 security deposit.

Johnny and Marylyn Jackson, the couple renting the house, took their case to the Indiana Civil Rights Commission, where they were awarded the $150 deposit and $1,000 as compensation for "racial insult". A Vigo Superior Court overturned the ruling.

Judge Joe W. Lowdermilk, writing the court opinion said that the rights commission went beyond its legal authority in calling for the payment of $1,000 in damages for "racial insult". The Appeals Court said the security deposit should be returned to the Jacksons. Judge Lowdermilk explained, the incident began when Mrs. Jackson told her prospecruled on Tuesday, Oct. 3 that a her husband was black. Mrs. Holman said she and her husband did not approve of mixed marriages but would interview Mr. Jackson.

"After the interview, Marthe landlord terminating the garet told Marylyn that Johnny seemed very nice and that the Holmans would rent to them for six months. The Jacksons signed for the house, with the Holmans retaining the right to cancel after six months", wrote Lowdermilk.

> While the Jacksons lived there the Holmans would not let Mr. Jackson use the lake. A privelege that was given to the rest of the renters. The landlord also would not allow him bring any black friends to the house, said Lowdermilk.

Margaret told the Jacksons that their lease would not be renewed because the Jacksons had damaged the house and permitted the premises to deteriorate and because "they were that kind of people". The Jacksons understood this to be tive landlord, Margaret Hol- a racial slur", wrote the judge.

Big business has finally said something that has been lingering on citizens' minds for vears--hurry and settle the school desegregation suit.

It took the Greater Indianapolis Progress Committee, a mayor-appointed cross section, bi-racial contingent of respected citizens charged with keeping the city on the upswing, to give voice to the sentiments.

"Many types of settlements are possible, such as the change of geographical territories between IPS schools and the several townships," said GIPC board chairman Tom Binford in a statement after its meeting last week.

The board called on all parties involved, offered its help to end the 10 years' litigation and added the committee "feels very strong that the case has lingered, and the citizens here deserve its resolutions, and the opportunity

Metcalfe was considered a stalwart of the late Mayor Richard Daley's machine and made his way up through the ranks from assistant precinct captain to ward committeeman, Metcalfe pulled away from Daley in 1972 over the issue of police brutality of blacks.

For a while, Metcalfe was considered a possible mayoral candidate in 1975, but he later endorsed Daley's liberal challenger, former Alderman William Singer, in the Democratic primary.

In retaliation, Daley stripped Metcalfe of his patronage in the 3rd Ward. But the late mayor was never able to mar or dent Metcalfe's power base.

Challenged by a Daley aide, Erwin France, in the 1976 Democratic primary race for Congress, Metcalfe won. In an even more bitterly contested fight he also retained his post as 3rd Ward committeeman. One of Metcalfe's toughest fights occured when the Internal Revenue Service began in 1972 to scrutinize his income-tax chairman of the Chicago City Committee. No charges were ever brought against Metcalfe and he contended that the federal investigation was in retaliation to his break with "An investigation of my rule could only prove that I have no skeletons in my closet, but I am not ruling out the possibility of facts being arranged, producing an indictment as punishment for my independence," Metcalfe said at the time.

Metcalfe made a career of fighting racism, but often was scorned by more militant blacks because-until 1972 - his efforts were on the personal rather than public level.

He was born in Atlanta on May 30, 1910. His father moved the family north to Chicago seeking better employment for himself and an education for his children that was free of Southern antagonisms.

Metcalfe was educated in Chicago public schools and became a track star in Tilden Contributions to the United Way campaign this year will help finance the fight against Sickle Cell disease. Martin Center Sickle Cell Center, 3549 North College, recently agreed to affiliation with United Way.

The Sickle Cell Center was originally founded as a response to the low priority of physical health in the black cummunity, since Sickle Cell is the most common chronic childhood disease and the trait can be found in one out of every ten black Americans.

The Center provides community screening and health education as related to Sickle Cell disease or hemoglobin variants, genetic counseling, and an outpatient clinic for clients. The Center also provides primary and referral health care services. Screening is done by appointment or walk-in.

Canning program recognition

set Oct. 26

The Annual Mayor's Garden Program Recognition Luncheon for community gardeners and canning patrons will take place Thursday, twelve noon, October 26, at the Municipal Gardens Recreation Center, 1831 Lafavette Road. Roger Coleman, of the Mayor's Office, will present awards along with Harry Feldman, Program Coordinator. This special event bestows honors of Volunteer Master Gardeners who assisted in the three community garden locations. Certificates of Appreciation will be presented to the gardeners who had the best maintained plots, and to those who have processed the greatest amount of produce at the cannery.

Neighborhood and church groups, senior citizen centers and local merchants will receive commendations for their services, and/or contributions towards the operation of the Mayor's Garden and Canning Program now completing its fourth year.

Black papacy questioned

The thought continues to surface within the last two months at any time in the 20th century. Will there ever be a black elected to the Papacy? Saturday, October 21, will be the gala opening of the re-modeled Monument Circle and One question which is receiving a multitude of research a vindication of the optimism of presently is, 'has there ever been a black pope?" That is a those who see a bright future question, surprisingly, no one for the downtown area. seems to know for sure.

Ideas regarding the Monument Circle and its beautification have been floating around for years. In May, 1976, Mayor William Hudnut assigned the substantial task of coordinating the various interests and funds necessary for the project to Tom Hasbrook. Without the and may have been black. He unique partnership of city, state and private sectors assembled under Hasbrook's supervision, the project's nearly $2 million cost could not have been covered.

Private interests included philanthropic entities like the Lilly Endowment and the Indianapolis Foundation, but important private support was also received from large and small advocates of downtown redevelopment, among whom were American Fletcher National Bank, Indianapolis Power and Light Company, Christ Church Cathedral and the Downtown Merchants Associa-

The actual opening ceremonies and day-long celebration begin at 1:00 pm on Saturday, October 21. Following opening ceremonies, over 30 organizations will provide a full afternoon's activities for the whole family. Capping the evening will be the disco sounds of Jimmy Coe and his orchestra and the First National City Rotagilla Band. All events are free and open to the public.

The Circle Celebration is being organized by alumni of the Stanley K. Lacy Leadership Series, the Commission for the Downtown and the Downtown Merchants Association.

With mounting speculation over the election chances of Cardinal Bernardin Grantin. the first black Cardinal in the Roman Curia, historians are hinting that three early popes may have been black. Pope St. Victor I (189-199) was a native of North Africa the Roman imperial family. Pope St. Melchiades (311-314), was also an African and possibly black. During his reign of the Edict of Mialn (313), St. Melchiades was decreed giving Christianity official status in the Roman Empire.

The last pope who might have been black is Pope St. Gelasius I (492-496).. Gelasius described himself as "Roman born," but it is believed he may have been born in Rome of African immigrants. The listings of popes in the official Vatican Year Book describes him as African.

It is difficult to ascertain the race of the early popes since much of North Africa was colonized by whites from Europe during the empire period, and because the early Christians paid little attention to

"A comparison of your child's competency against what he or she should be expected to be doing at his grade level will give a parent some clue as to whether the child is achieving what he or she should at each level," explained Dr. Herbert Hoffman.

"If your child is in the sixth grade, say, ask him the quiz questions for that level. If he does well, go on to the seventh and eighth grade level. If not, go back to the fifth, fourth or possibly even the third grade level- to whichever level he can answer the questions. This way, you'll know how the child is doing.

the meanings of the following words by referring to a dictionary, inflecity, insatiable, onus, obtrusive, sequential.

3. Ask the child to solve the following problem: If a man earned $5,400 on the job and had to give the government 10 percent in taxes, would he have cost 4,650 and a TV set that cost $356? If not how much money would he be short? If the answer is yes, how much would

he have left? GRADES 7 AND 8

1. Ask your child to read a book review in a newspaper and then write a report at least one page long based on what he had read. Examine the written report and check for errors and content. (The main ideas should be well paraphrased and there should be no more than three errors of any kind).

2. Ask him to solve the following problems: If a pound of butter costs $1.19, how much would the butter cost in a cake calling for a quarter of a pound? If gasoline costs 69 cents a gallon, and you are driving a car that gets 19 miles to the gallon, how much would it cost to drive from Washington to New York? (The child should look up any required information himself)

GRADES 9 AND 10 1. Ask the child to write an original story giving the details of some recent personal experience. The story should have a definite opening, middle and ending and it should also have sufficient detail and well-expressed phrases to make it understandable and interest-

Dedication weekend marks open of new Assembly Hall

After the completion of several months of remodel and renovation work by volunteers of Jehovah's Witnesses, an old Indianapolis Landmark building now already in use, will be dedicated this weekend.

The structure originally built in 1912 by the Second Church of Christ's Scientists is located at 1202 N. Delaware in the registered historic district of the Old Northside. The property was purchased early in March of this year from Lifegate Baptist, and after nearly 35,000 hours of volunteer labor is now ready for its intended

PENDERGRASS BUMPS, GRINDS, MOANS AND GROANS FEMALE FANS INTO A FRENZY

Pendergrass serves up heavy macho

TEDDY PENDERGRASS had at least 10,000 members of the world at his feet last Sunday when he sang in the Expo Center. Pendergrass pushed his macho sex symbol image to new heights as he put a commanding spell over his audience. A spell which all but overtook the female crowd and, by evening's end, had the men wanting more.

The 27-year-old former HAROLD MELVIN & THE BLUE NOTES front man was welcomed on stage by a near rush of screaming women, who remained around the stage, hands reaching upward, until security guards asked them away. He appeared on stage in a loose-fitting white top with matching skin-tight pants from clouds of smoke resting below strands of material which formed the shape of a pyramid.

He opened with "Life is a Song Worth Singing," title of the tour, and his recent platinum album, and it was evident from the outset the Vegas-style sophistication of last year's Pendergrass shows was to be gone. Pendergrass has gone from overly classy polish to a polished raunch which stands ladies on their ears. The man couldn't do as much as swivel his hips or project his hard-hitting baritone without being overwhelmed by screams.

His suggestive bump-and-grind routines punctuated "Only You," "I Don't Love You Anymore," and "Get Up, Get Down, Get Funky, Get Loose." Pendergrass' choreography is fine, as it gets its message across, but it appears mechanical. It seems he does it only because he has to. He's got songwriters doing material like the sexy "Close the Door," for which he stripped his top to reveal a white body shirt.

He was constantly bathed in baby blue lights, which, against the white outfit, gave him an almost dream image.

Pendergrass did three songs from his Blue Notes days, "The Love I Lost," "Wake Up Everybody" and "Bad Luck," and had his male audience joining their dates in begging for encores of "Close the Door" and "Somebody Loves You Back" which they never got. However, the men had their moment when the charming EMOTIONS walked on.

JEANETTE, SHEILA and WANDA HUTCHINSON have the most pleasant harmony I've heard out of a female group. They're talented performers and, while Sheila tends to overact, they handled GEORGE FAISON's ("The Wiz") complicated choreography to the max. The three sisters who began their careers as the HUTCHINSON SUNBEAMS got off in a nice set, which included "Smile," "Don't Ask My Neighbors," "Flowers," and "Best Of My Love."

"DEATH OF BRUCE LEE" "FURY OF THE BLACK BELT"

Believe Me.. When I Tell You

BOB WOMACK SR.

Greetings! From The Left-Hander:

"ROCK MUSIC," born of the blues known as "contemporary rock" will be around a long time because it is the logical outcome of whites have mixed with the blues And "That's The Black so many other kinds of music firmly rooted in the American Truth!".. Believe Me!

"Rock" is based on the urban Negro blues. Also it results from the mass migration of blacks, North to work in the factories and steel mills of Gary; Chicago; Detroit and other industrial centers. And from the problems they encountered in making the adjustment. Urban blues comes in turn, from the rural blues engendered by slavery and the sharecropping system of the deep

In the late 1940s, white performers including Elvis Presley began to absorb the vital rhythms and earthy language of Negro blues into their own country music. The result, was "Rockabilly music," an amalgamation of the visceral rhythms of rock and the speech patterns of the rural folk of the south.

Even though the people themselves hated each other, they listened to the music and borrowed. In fact, the influence of black "sounds" on white "sounds" was stronger than white on black, although many country performers are now beginning to admit it. After Elvis' sensational debut in the early 1950s, and a few years after, were the "worst periods" in white rock music,

It became the practice for white cats to "cover." This meant that the white performers, aiming for the predominatly white national market, took to recording music originally recorded for explicit sexual reference of the original Negro music. In the mid-1950s, this period ended with what was called the "folk song revival." It all started with the all-white Viscotta for the standard in the world.

Raymond St. Jacques, as the prison leader, is said to "turn in the film's best performance" in "Born Again," the screen version of former White House advisor Charles Color. Their music was simple, if not, unsophisticated and there was some meaning in the "sounds."

Later, Bobby Dylan arrived in the midst of the "revival," and when he began to sing his songs to the accompaniment of the electric guitar, the dude changed the rock musical scene. Along with his poetry which he set to music.

Not withstanding, during that time, the long-haired, flippant Beatles arrived in the United States from England and set the whole rock world on fire. Many of the music buffs, were unaware the Beatles had been wailing together for a long time and were accomplished musicians. Many "now generation" rock musicianssingers organized just to make a hit platter (record) so, they could get rich in a hurry.

The Beatles, like many other aggregations before them waited a long time, but kept at their music because it was important to history to own a network affiliated VHF-TV station in the them, not for the 'bread" (money.) How do parents go about developing a taste for "good music" in their children? As in the old joke about how you treat a sick tiger, the answer is "very.

Forced piano lessons and dragging unwilling youngsters to concerts are not the answer. Your offspring would rather be listening to their Top 20

Nowhere in today's culture is there a greater gap between generations than in musical tastes. To today's youngster, going to a concert means joining 19,999 other kids to see 'Kiss' or 'The Grateful Dead.'

One subtle way for a parent to introduce a child to new musical experiences is to casually flip on the television set Sunday afternoon Oct. 22 for the latest in the 'CBS Festival' of Lively Arts for Young People' series. It's called 'Movement in Music—Or It's a Treat to Tap Your Feet. For youngsters who think that the only kind of music fit to move to is found in discotheques, it should be a big surprise.

On this program, hostess-commentator Beverly Sills and conductor Gunther Schuller demonstrate in an informal fashion that all music is meant to be moved to. They say, "All music swings if you let

Sills and Schuller scoff at the pigeon-holing of musical forms into "serious" and "pop." Their point of view is that of the composer Rossini, who said that there are only two kinds of music—good and bad. The New York Philharmonic swings and sways to the martial beat of Sousa's 'The Thunderer' as its opening number. Then it illustrates how ragtime Never guess what food is good for a baby . . . or what amount should be served. Always ask your doctor or health professionals at a clinic and follow the advice carefully.

During the first year, it's important that a baby experience and enjoy a wide range of foods, in addition to milk or formula. This is a gradual process, following a broad pattern that should eventually include daily servings of foods from each of the four Basic Food Groups. These are Milk. Meat. Vegetable-Fruit, and Bread-Cereal.

With the convenient line of Gerber baby foods, you can select menus from all these groups. The wide variety will help your baby form lifetime good eating habits.

The Hon. Clifford L. Alexander, Jr., [left] Secretary of the Army, accepts a framed reproduction of a painting of black National Guardsmen from Major General LaVern E. Weber, Chief, National Guard Bureau, Departments of the Army and Air Force. The painting, from the National Guard Heritage Series, depicts black National Guardsmen from the famed 369th Infantry Regiment in Harlem fighting in France during World War 1. The distinguished National Guard Regiment left its proud mark on the American Expeditionary Force, nearly 60 years ago, as "the regiment that never lost a man captured, a trench or a foot of ground..."Secretary Alexander, who once was a National Guardsman in the 369th when living in New York, today has the Army National Guard as one of the reserve components to the U.S. Army.

In the Ivory Coast, Ms. Hill's duties include supervision and planning for 70 Peace Corps volunteers working in health education, immunization, tuberculosis control, nutrition, rural development and agriculture projects that characterize the Peace Corps' basic human needs programming.

Ms. Hill graduated in 1963 from Hunter College in New York, taught French for a year in a Pennsylvania secondary school, and studied at the ship athletes to attend the Sorbonne in Paris prior to Southern Illinois University, receiving her master's of science degree from Middlebury College in Vermont. From 1966 to 1971, she taught at New York University and took courses towards her Ph.D., which she received in 1971. After teaching for a year at Vassar College in New York, she went to Fordham. While earning her doctorate, Ms. Hill spent six months director of education at the researching her dissertation in Breckenridge Job Corps in French speaking Africa, including the Ivory Coast. One of her special concerns as country director in the Ivory Coast is education.

"I'm especially interested in education for those who missed -- the older people. My teaching experience at Fordham included working not only with younger people, but older people in the Excel program, which is designed for non-traditional students," says Ms. Hill. "Education for older people is a very enriching thing for teacher and student.

"Our emphasis should be working along with the poor -we're not to impose, but to approach the program from their point of view," she continues.

"That's what has always made the Peace Corps attractive to me: Peace Corps is not, 'This is what you need and we are going to do it,' but rather, 'Let's talk and see what you need, and how if we can help.'

Ms. Hill is the daughter of Marnesba Hill of New York City. She has two sisters. Susan Slocum, who lives in Ossining, N.Y., and Marnesba

This by no stretch of the imagination is an insignificant position, since it involves basically coming up with the pills, serums and antedotes that assure a healthier tomorrow. This is pretty darn good for an aspiring young man who first joined Lilly in 1962 as a senior bacteriologist, which in itself is no lowly post. If Campbell felt dedicated to his profession, he was just as profound in giving needed input to the community at large.

His work at Lilly's proved he had it upstairs. The community work showed he had a heart. And color put no restriction on his concerns.

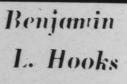

For starters, the executive was one of the Human Relations Task Force of the Greater Indianapolis Progress Committee's first members.

Delving deeper into the black community he was on the Flanner House Board and even served as campaign chairman for the United Negro College Fund.

The list detailing his affiliations could fill a column, and blacks benefit from more than a few of them. We as a race are sometimes reluctant to give credit where due, especially when the responsible force is invisible or rarily seen. Hayward Campbell didn't make it a practice to visit the black community regularly, but his talent, energy and genuine care was poured into it in countless ways. When the executive made his premature demise October 5, the Lilly conglomerate lost a dynamic force, his wife and daughters lost a family head and black Indianapolis lost a ranking and influential friend.

Irrelevant wish-wash

Here we go again. That much heralded sociologist thored a report in 1966 that said black children learned better in integrated settings, has again turned against his earlier findings. It is a "Mistaken Belief," he said, that black children learn better in integrated schools.

For research over the past decade has shown that "it is not the case that school desegregation as it has been carried out in American schools generally brings achievement benefits to disadvantaged (translate black)

Integration, he has found, does not work. "Thus what once appeard to be fact is now known to be fiction.

Anyone who has seen, much less waded through, Coleman's voluminous report entitled. "Equality of Educational Opportunity," must therefore wonder what has happened between the period in which that research was done and the past decade on which the present study is based.

Have the basic foundations and attitudes on which American society is built change so radically as to impel Coleman to reject the conclusions of his earlier studiess? We suspect

Or. was the University of Chicago sociologist merely riding the crest of national self guilt when he conducted the tudy that Congress authorized ander the 1964 Civil Rights Act and which was sponsored by the U.S. Office of Education?

To understand Coleman's new wisdom, we must recognize that in recent years the segregation target has not been primarily the South but the North. Southern segregation, we should recall, was an easy and very profitable target for many northern liberals such as

But now that the civil rights struggle has been carried into the North, we find that many of our former allies are acting no differently than southern red-necks of yesteryear who bitterly opposed integration.

So, as with an earlier rejection of northern school desegregation that was voiced in 1975, the sociologist is now riding the conservative, racist crest that is no different in the North from the South. It is not surprising, therefore, that he finds that court-orderd school busing is "counter-productive." In 1975, he charged that chool busing had proved counterproductive because it caused whites to flee the cities. Colo tes to flee the cities. Coleman, however, admitted then that his studies were not

Instead, the NNACP demonstrated that schools attended primarily by black children were willfully starved of equal funding, and adequate resources. Furthermore, by being singled out for segregation, black children were deliberately made to feel inferior -- a psychological

To the Editor: Is legislation a "three-ring

For years people have separated themselves from politics television, I was extremely and legislation and it is no different today. I know this because for most of the past 15 years I have held public contact

In some cases, observations such as these may be true; but like anything else, there are some good and bad politicians, legislators, and laws.

Well, if the person does not have any guts to identify himself, I am glad he or she is "ex" supporters. This anonymous person also identified himself as "black", but was tions than you? There was only worring about the so called "backlash." This person was worried about something being shoved down someone's throat. ANONYMOUS

I have read many articles stating that the black woman does not understand her black man. How can this be when the black woman is on the same ship as her black man? She has to face the same prejudices as the black man and she has fought through the years just the title. I do remember it was as hard for freedom as her black counterpart.

I've also read that black woman are too dominant. Many black women wish for the day when the black man will take the leading role in the family. So many of our black men are too busy being ego maniacs to take the dominant role in family affairs.

For they must be the slickest talkers, the sharpest dressers, the best lovers, and above all. they must prove to the fellows that they do as they please, when they please. The black woman has been thrust into a very difficult role. She is the white man's sex symbol (because of her natural beauty). She is degraded by the black man, but still must maintain a certain level of dignity and respect. She is put into one category--very disheartening to see, hear and read, how little respect black men have for us.

The black woman is not thought of as a woman, wife, mother, worker, or anything which creates a strong female image. She is often thought of by the black man as a symbol of failure and rejections. I give respect, therefore, I demand respect. I take pride in myself and I welcome my family's appreciation for my efforts. I do not degrade myself, though. And I do not expect to be degraded for I am black woman-but most of all--I am a woman!

IPS Commissioner Dr. Busch rebuts board 'legal' critics

At the September 26, 1978, open session of the Indianapolis Board of School Commissioners, there was a lengthy discussion regarding the right of individual board members to seek legal opinion from our attorneys, to make requests of them or even to seek their legal advice. In essence, the question was whether we could confer with our attorneys in any way without the express permission of the president and/or without making every other commissioner aware of the communication or correspondence between the attorney and that individual board member.

During the last two years that I've been a Board Member, at no time can I recall any policy being approved by this board that disallowed board members from conferring with attorneys. And to establish was the case, one need only to monthly billings over the past two years to readily confirm the fact that individual board members have, indeed, made requests of attorneys, and attorneys have responded. Not only has this been the case with board members who served the last couple of years, it's also true of at least one board member who took a seat on the Board on July 1.

Case in point -- a letter contained in our board materials, a letter from Attorney Wood to Attorney Atkins with a request from Commissioner DeFrantz, a request that the board did not direct the attor ney to make in our behalf. I do not suggest that this request should have been denied, but I am merely establishing the fact that such requests are routinely made and routinely responded to-and for reasons vet unclear to me, my request did not fall within this routine.

No member of this board, not even the president, has the power of authority to dictate to any other board member precisely when one may, or may not make contact with an attorney. Nor does a presiding role give one this discretionary authority to determine the legitimacy or timeliness of such requests.

Serving as president assumes that there are additional responsibilities and powers, yes. It does not assume, however, that one of these powers is censorship over the actions of other duly elected officials. I would question the attempts of any board member to prevent attorneys in our employ from responding to the reasonable formal request of any other board member.

Until this specific time, requests that have been made by board members to attorneys have been made routinely and without fanfare and I truly question the unique and pecul iar handling of my request.

If this board in an open meeting adopts a policy that changes past procedure con-cerning board members' contact with attorneys, then I will, of course, abide by that decision. However, I wish to make it clear that until such time that a policy comes before this board that changes past practices, I shall continue to make personal contact with attorneys -- by phone, in person, or through written memo form, and I expect a response from the

Apart from the questions of procedure to which I have addressed myself, are the actual substantive issues refer enced in my memo of Septem ber 15th to our attorneys. I requested that written legal opinion be prepared regarding Resolution 7106, which this board approved at its last meeting, and about which I still have some real concerns.

In addition to the general legal opinion, I raised questions concerning the legality of the directives contained therein and requested that this memo be ready by Friday, September 22nd, to be included in all board members packet of materials for delivery on that evening. In regards to Resolution 7106, I very much support the spirit of Commissioner DeFrantz's intent. I think the record will show that I have always supported affirmative action, but in my opinion this resolution is not affirmative action. Indeed, it was my September 14, 1976, request to the attorneys to draw up the original Affirmative Action Policy for Indianapolis Public Schools. It was my motion of November 30, 1976, which resulted in that policy eventually being adopted. It was my hold-out vote which assured that we would have a black attorney as a part of our on-going legal counsel; and, again, it was my hold-out vote which was directly responsible for having black legal repre-regation case. These actions stemmed from the fact that I knew we did have qualified blacks and other

sentation in our present deseg

minorities. It was my intent through these actions to provide an equal opportunity for minorities to compete for all School Board positions when vacancies exist. not solely because I, too, am black and female, but primarily because I know that blacks are as capable as anyone

Thus, it is my concern that this board not become enmeshed in public-pleasing rhetoric and lengthy litigation, but instead that we adopt policies and procedures that will have tangible, visible and workable results. Without belabouring this point, let me mention at least one current example. recently as this year, before most of the commissioners who voted for Resolution 7106 had taken their seat, this board found itself faced with litigations because of mere rumor that we had adopted a practice of holding positions exclusively for minorities. After we have been contacted by a concerned employee's attorney, we did what amounted to "settling out-of-court" in order to avoid the imminent legal battle. I shudder to thing about the consequences of translating this kind of rumor into a documentable board policy. This is what Resolution 7106 requires.

The issue, to me, is clear. We can either soberly, deliberately, and community support, go about the business of implementing our present policy, or we can exhaust our energies in legal battles and constant defense of what we have done. I say to this board, 'Let's have a workable policy and let's make it work.' Commissioner Mary E. Busch

Adult swimming lessons among park activities

Indianapolis Department of Parks and Recreation sponsors year-round activities--some for small fees, and others at no cost. Following is a list of those activities upcoming, housed among the department's 28 community centers.

Adult swimming lessons are offered Tuesday and Thursday evenings at $5 per five-week at Riverside Community Center.

A free adult trimnastics class is offered at Riverside from 7-8 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

For additional information on activities, dial the center at 925-1411.

Hurling frisbee may soon become 'championship' fad

Seasons change rapidly as do fads. Despite the advent of a winter around the corner, the art of frisbee throwing has the least worries of environmental

A little history precludes that in days long gone, there might have been "pluto platters," those enormously popular discs that hover almost constantly over America's parks, beaches, streets and backyards.

Yes, we might have experi-"pluto platter" mania, world championships, pluto platter t-shirts and the pluto platter fever which would have

Now that the art of hurling a frisbee has become a near athletic endeavor for many, frisbee championships attract hundreds of participants and thousands of enthusiasts world-

One wonders, had it not been for another American craze--Hula Hoop, what the ultimate reception of frisbee throwing would have been.

The idea for the toy came to a mid-way pitchman, Fred Morrison, who traveled to California circuits in the early 50s selling what he called an "invisible string." Morrison convinced skeptical customers that 100 feet of the string was a bargain by sailing a pie plate down the string to a planted accomplice in the audience.
Invisible string, however, didn't make Morrison an abrupt millionaire by no means! But he thought sailing pie plates would. In a more delicate fabric, he thought it might make a fantastic toy.

So Morrison took his idea to the Wham-O Manufacturing Co. in San Gabriel, California. In 1956. Wham-O introduced a plastic flying disc called the pluto platter, along with another gadget which looked life a stiff, section of garden hoses connected -- indications as to why the aforementioned -- Hula Hoop became the American fad, and the pluto platter never got off the ground.

Ten years later the company made a last ditch effort to market the pluto idea. Instead of pluto platter, this time Wham-O named it after a pie company (the Frisbie Pie Co.) in Bridgeport, Conn.

More than 100 million frisbees have been sold since 1967. and it appears that the Wham-O executives have no plans of allowing the frisbee -- which accounts for 25 percent of its annual business -- to become a nostalgic bit of memorabillia like the Hula-Hoop.

Chrysler 'roadsters' set standards

Anyone who journeyed to Atlanta to see the new line of 1979 Chrysler, Plymouth and Dodge automobiles, had to be impressed with the beauty and performance of these cars.

A new introduction, the Fifth Avenue edition of the New Yorker, heads the luxury line. Other models are: the Newport, Horizon, Champ, Arrow Pickup, Volare, Cardoba, Le Baron, Sapporo and Trail Duster. The new line includes the more luxurious vans and station wagons. Many new options are offered this year and, improved mileage is standard for all cars.

Some of the new feature found on many of the '79 Chrysler line of automobiles this year are: new control lever mounted on the steering wheel: a flag style outside mirror; a diagnostic connector for easily detecting electrical trouble:

TERRE HAUTE-

The Indiana State University basketball team, with a 48-12 record the past two seasons-including consecutive appearances in the National Invitation Tournament-has released its 1978 schedule.

With their consensus All-American forward Larry Bird returning for his final season, the Sycamores will play half of their 26-game slate at Hulman Center here.

Travel dates include nonconference games with state rivals Purdue, Nov. 27; rebuilding University of Evansville, Dec. 2; and Ball State Dec. 12. ISU will also compete in the Hatter Classic, Dec. 8-9, at LeLand Florida. Teams entered are host Stetson; Cleveland State, and East Carolina.

Coach Bob King's fourth edition of the Sycamores will play non-conference home games with Illinois State, Dec. 4. and Butler. Dec. 16. Other non-conference home games involve Lawrence University of Wisconsi in the season opener Nov. 25; Morris Harvey College of West Virginia, Dec. 30, and North Carolina A&T. Jan. 9.

Banking At Home? Protect Your Money With Travelers Checks

Be it ever so humble, sure there's no place like home. But, according to American Express, millions of dollars are lost each year by dwellers who habitually leave cash at

What can these cash hoarders do to protect their money? According to Con-Affairs expert at American Express, Barbara Sullivan, "There's little risk in keeping a small amount of cash at home for emergencies. However, with a large sum of money it's better to deposit it in a financial institution or convert it into travelers checks. American Express Cheques, for example, never expire and, if they are lost at home or stolen, you can get them replaced.

What follows are five common reasons why people lose their money in their homes: 1. People hide money at home and, like "absent-minded" professors, forget where they put it.

2. The pockets of old discarded clothing or items sent to the cleaners often have cash that has been forgotten. 3. Pets and children delight in tearing up and even swallowing bills.

4. Fires destroy cash, like everything else.

Shadows in the wasteland

BY LAUA PARKS

The balmy days of summer are over. The leaves are falling and once again it is the season of the politicians. President Carter and Prime Minister Begin are riding high while President Sadats personal bodyguard has once again been carefully screened and strengtheded.

The celebrated Camp David "Framework for Peace" struggles to survive a difficult birth and is destined to meet increasing opposition that in the end may shatter the political fortunes of its desperate architects. At the moment the media is into one of its periodic, almost hysterial, outbursts of praise, showering the Camp David summiters with golden adjectives.

For the time being at least the Summit fathers must feel a certain degree of satisfaction. On the surface of it they seem to have succeeded in preventing the Soviet Union from having much say in Egyptian -Isreali relations. For the time being too they have succeeded in splitting the Arab world in a most grieveous manner and to have placed the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO) in a very difficult position.

The Summit fathers are determined to split the PLO and they mean to do this by inviting c e r t a i n Palestinian Arabs to negotiate with the Isrealis for the creation of an "autonomous" Arab government within the borders of Israel, which is a long cry from the Palestinian Arabs demand for an independent Palestinian

of the summiteers was the creation of a pro-Western block of African and Arab nations along the oil supply routes of the Suez Canel and the Persian Gulf. Riots against the Shah of Iran during the Summit meetings potentially threatened the plan and prompted President Carter and Prime Minister Callaghan of Britain to assure the Shah that he could count on Anglo-American support.

Perenial social and economic unrest in Egypt and Iran has added urgency to the Summit-eers desire for achieving a resolution to the regions problems without at the same time inviting the Soviet Union or the Chinese in. This was achieved by the forced political march at

It is abundantly clear that the Summiteers received guarantees from the United States and Saudi Arabia to provide the necessary financial support to sweeten the pot and to entice others to join the, as yet incomplete grand design. But there are Arab states like Algeria, Libya and Yeman what consider Sadat a traitor and have broken off diplomatic relations with Egypt. Syria, and of course, the PLO remain opposed to the Summit plans.

If the Summit planners had hoped to keep the Soviet Union out of the Middle East then it must have come as a mild surprise to them to have learned that the hard line, pro -PLO Arab states have called for increased cooperation between themselves and the Soviet Union.

For the moment at least, and hopefully, until after the November elections the networks will continue to boost the Carter standing in the public opinion polls. But beyond November the "Framework for Peace" may collapse just as the dollar has done in recent weeks because people and nations have lost faith in the ability of the United States to unilaterally determine the fate of its money or of its system of alliances.

Confusion rather than accurate information is the product of most modern advertising. If you plan to market a non-nutritious breakfast cereal, you simply emphasize that each morsel is sugar-coated, shaped like personal zodiac signs and enjoys world-wide by Olympic athletes. By stressing these inconsequential points, attention is cleverly diverted from

> Just as corporations have successfully marketed junk food, junk cars, and other junk products, some business-supported groups are now selling junk political ideas. Foremost among these "cracker jack" proposals are the so-called "right-to-work" laws, the original political junk food.

the most pertinent fact -- the cereal is worthless junk.

While appearing to offer job security and full employment, "right-to-work" laws offer nei-ther. Instead, they are intentionally designed to weaken unions, lower wages, and keep workers in their place. All this is accomplished by imposing a compulsory "open shop," even when a majority of workers democratically opt for union Essentially, the open shop arrangement -- favored by employers since trade unions emerged over a century ago -allows a few workers, the free riders to enjoy all the benefits of collective bargaining without paying a cent toward the upkeep of their union. Such an unfair system necessarily militates against the development of strong unions, and provides the employer with numerous advantages.

The market for political representation.

BAYARD RUSTIN

By deliberately and repeatedly confusing the issues, "right-to-work" forces have scored some key victories during the last two years. In Arkansas, for instance, they successfully blocked a spirited attempt to repeal that state's compulsory open shop law. And in Louisiana they passed legislation outlawing all forms of union security clauses. Now, the business-supported National Right-to-Work Committee has opened shop in Missouri with the hope of selling its sugar-coated, but hazardous proposals. Fortunately, many and across the country fully understand that a victory for "right-to-work" could very well spell disaster for the black community, economically as well as politically.

For black people, the economic consequences are especially clear. As numerous studies have shown, black union members earn substantially more than non-union blacks. In 1974, for example, the median weekly income of black union members was $169, while non-union blacks received only $124 -- a difference of more than a third. By weakening unions through compulsory open shop laws, the economic security of thousands upon thousands of black union members will be jeopardized.

To sweeten the bitter economic impact of "right-to-work" laws, their leading proponents assert that "union free" states and localities quickly attract business investment which creates more jobs. The facts, however, tell a different story. A few years ago, the former Governor of Kansas -- one of 20 "right-to-work" states claimed that such laws actually diskey black leaders in Missouri courage industrial ment. Furthermore, Professor Daniel H. Pollitt of the University of North Carolina concluded that a variety of studies "indicate that right-to-work states have not received more than their proportionate share of a new industry, and that the enactment of right - to - work laws is no way responsible for the increase in non-farm employment."

While business groups supporting "right-to-work" efforts claim to be solely concerned with "protecting the freedom of their employees," they are, in reality seeking to protect their own freedom, to fire workers at will, to pay low wages, and to keep fringe benefits minimal. Moreover, they also seek to neutralize labor as a political force by weakening unions in the shops.

At the political level, then, 'right-to-work" is also a challenge to the black community. If these deceptive proposals favorites of the New Rightwin approval in Missouri or any state we can expect a lengthy parade of other co. crvative measures, such as cuts in school budgets, reductions in desperately needed social services, and "tax reforms" that aid the rich. In short, another "rightto-work" victory, especially this year, will further encourage the peddlers of political junk

Ancient people believed : birthstone brought good luck to the wearer and also in fluenced a person's personal ity by strengthening such traits as courage, sincerity, and loyalty, according to The World Book Encyclopedia.
